Dr. Harry Quigley is the A. Edward Maumenee Professor of Ophthalmology and the Director of the Glaucoma Service and the Dana Center for Preventive Ophthalmology at the Wilmer Eye Institute of the John Hopkins University, Baltimore, Maryland. For decades, Dr. Quigley has been one of the leading experts in the field of glaucoma research and surgery. His more than 300 publications over the last 30 years are among those cited most in the ophthalmic literature. Because of his research, our knowledge on the mechanisms of optic nerve damage in glaucoma has been put forward significantly. Harry Quigley served as Editor-in-Chief of Investigative Ophthalmology and Visual Science (1993–1997), Executive Vice President of the Association for Research in Vision and Ophthalmology (ARVO, 1987–1992), and Trustee of ARVO (1987–1997). Among numerous honors, he has received the Prix Jules Francois, the Alcon Research Institute Award, the Lewis Rudin Glaucoma Prize of the New York Academy of Sciences, and the Friedenwald Award of ARVO.
