Promotion. How?

PHD Research Associate in Statistics at Humboldt University of Berlin. My experience as an international student of IIVU was very rewarding. Having strictly theoretical educational background, my ambitions to orient my career towards data science seemed unachievable until my first semester in LViv when I was introduced to the right set of programming skills that prepared me to compete for better opportunities in the international market that demands these skills for all kind of jobs. Apart from classroom learning, I participated in an international student conference, worked for a renowned software company and collaborated with my expert thesis supervisor on a regular basis which further polished my professional, presentation and research skills. The liveliness of LViv city made my stay even more pleasant. Being an enthusiastic traveler, the city’s rich history, beautiful architecture, colorful culture, delicious cuisine, and warm-hearted people never allowed me to miss long-distance travelling. In a nutshell, I am proud that I chose Ukraine as my second-year destination and if given an opportunity, I will not change a thing about my perfect experience in LViv.
