Information on registering for first attempts at examinations

This information applies to

- all master's degree programs in Chemistry
- the bachelor's program Chemistry
- chemistry courses in the bachelor's program Business Chemistry

Students have to register themselves for all first attempts at examinations via FlexNow within the registration and deregistration period.

To register for a first attempt, you need to be enrolled in the current semester.

- You must keep to the registration and deregistration deadlines.
- If you miss the deadline for registering and canceling your registration, it is no longer possible to register or deregister.

Additional information on registering for courses and module examinations

Teaching activities are course and exam credits to be completed within a module either to pass the module or as preliminary course for a final module examination.

(Please consult the relevant module catalog for precise information.)

Registration for teaching activities:

for problems with registering and canceling registrations for teaching activities (courses, lab courses and seminars, excursions), contact the person teaching the course or the chair's office.

Registering for module examinations:

if you have any problems with registering during the registration period for the interdisciplinary lecture series of the bachelor's program or a basic module examination in the master's program, inform the examination office without delay.
